

From: Ddduffy@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/16/02 1:54am
Subject: Microsoft%20Settlement

We use Wetbusters.com and the Java chat rooms are helpful. Microsoft Corporation has decided to no longer include Java with the new version of Windows (called "XP"), because Java was developed by a competitor, Sun Microsystems. Therefore, if you buy a new personal computer, in order to use Wetbusters chat rooms or many other modern chat rooms on the web, you must first download and install Java. This is a complicated process and takes 15-20 minutes with a standard modem connection. The process is even more complicated for America Online users. We feel that this is unfair to kids because a lot of kids will not be able to understand how to download and install Java, and kids new to the site simply won't make the effort. Because Microsoft is allowed to have a monopoly on the PC operating system, we feel that they have a responsibility to not abandon Java users (e.g. wetbusters kids). Therefore, we are requesting your help in persuading Microsoft to reverse their decision on removing Java from Windows. we request the U.S. Department of Justice require that Microsoft be required to include Java with Windows XP.
Thank you very much for your help.